

Bette's Makes Hits 337,000 monthly views on Pinterest

Wow, I can hardly believe it my Pinterest account has hit 337,000 monthly views! I know that number really doesn't mean much but at the same time, it does mean more people are visiting my boards!

If you are new to my mailing list, this is likely the first weekly newsletter you are receiving. I do hope you stay with us as I love to share my crafting news and my latest Freebies is you have not already seen them.

This week has been spent catching up with my blog writing. I am working on a 100 day challenge to write a blog article every day. As of Friday, I worked on Day 74 and that is with being 5 days behind because of technology challenges over last week and weekend. One day I will be able to wrestle technology to the ground until it submits to what I want. Sigh...maybe later.

This week I created posts on the following topics - many of them have downloadables attached to them. You can head over to my resource library to download them at any time. As usual the password remains the same, which is love.

Featured Blog Post

My favorite blog post from last week was on Paper Mache. I am totally amazed at how creative some artists are when it comes to making beautiful art out of scraps of newsprint. From the simple to the complex, there are so many choices for projects. In this article I encourage you to try it and share your results.

Isn't this dog absolutely out of this world? Take in the article, if you have not yet read it.
