

BettesMakes.com Weekly Crafting News April 20, 2019

Hello:

Wow, the week has flown by and here we are on Easter Weekend! Time for family, friends, and feasts. This Easter is bringing sunshine to our lives despite the fact that there was a tragic fire at Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris. Such a historic loss of the roof and spire.

Our crafts for this week were plenty, starting with a day of dyeing hand-spun wool. There were so many different techniques used on that day but our post takes you through the details of the cleanest and simplest method that is safe for your kids to enjoy with you (BTW you can use this same dyeing method for Easter Eggs),

I know you are likely very busy over this weekend but if you are ready for family fun, then these projects will be amazing.

I also created a post for a handmade birthday card as one of my marathon running group friends was turning 89. She did her last run at the age of 80! I sure hope to be that fit when I turn 80!

This card is based on a teapot and has lots of embellishments - you can adjust any of the elements to the perfect size!

Have a super crafting week!

BTW - if you are creating crafts and want to build your following, I recommend purchasing this book - I have followed it and now have over 500,000 monthly views on Pinterest. The normal cost is $27.
