

BettesMakes and Copious Crafts Weekly Newsletter January 4

Happy New Year! The First Weekend of the Year is Upon Us. I want to start out the New Year with a Big Welcome to all my subscribers! Be sure to check the end of this newsletter for your FREE weekly download. Shhh... it is a secret!

With your New Year's resolutions made and quarterly plans ready for execution, you must be all set for a year of incredible crafting fun!

It is time to join my Facebook Group and start in with our initial craft, which is creating a 3 D frame from paper. For those of you who love to find deals at the dollar store, this craft fits right in. You can use a cutting machine or simply use scissors to cut out the frame - nice and simple! You will probably want to follow the step-by-step directions in order to get a handle on how to fold and glue the project.

I hope your introduction to the New Year was all you wanted it to be. Here, in Vancouver, people were partying and up to the wee hours of the morning and then went from the party to the English Bay Polar Bear Swim! A record breaking attendance - maybe because the weather here is still a reasonable temperate (8 C or 46 F). Still too cold for me, but I did enjoy going for a walk n the sunshine.

I have added a lot more to my resource library this past week, especially with using my planner to know what comes next. But, then again, there are always those shiny objects that catch my attention and somehow get slipped into the mix! Do you ever get side-tracked with new things to make>

BTW - if you missed any of these newsletters, the archives are in the resource library - at the end of the list of files.

This Week's Blog Article - 3 D Frames

As with any Holiday Season, I get lots of hand made art from my family, especially from the younger kids. They even made their own cards! I wanted to find a way to display the cards beyond the holidays, so decided to create a 3 D Frame that could hang on the wall for an extended period of time. The first one I made I used some cut outs from a paper stack I had purchased for the winter season. It turned out not too bad!. I will next be making one to display the art work of one of my grand kids - she is super with drawing! Perhaps this is something you will want to do as well.

Just remember that all of my templates are FREE - nothing to buy!

Here are a few craft resources - they always have sales going on.

I usually shop at both these locations when there are great sales. Now is the time! I even buy birthday presents ahead of the curve because of all the deals.

Design Bundles has more to offer as well - their sales pricing is amazing to say the least. Click on this banner to see if they have more sales this weekend.

This Week's Freebie!

I discovered how to use old books, scrap cardstock, or anything that easily folds into gorgeous butterflies! I have not yet written the blog article but I thought I would share the template with you ahead of it being published to the general public.

Please give this one a try - I think you will really like it!
