

BettesMakes Weekly Newsletter March 7

This weeks FREEBIE is butterflies! Perfect for adding to the top of this week's project! See below for details.

I Must be Insane!

I enrolled in Elite Blog Academy on March 1st. I know I want to improve my blog and these newsletters that I send to you each week and I needed the coaching and the course to help make this happen. I spent 3 days working on the first unit of the first module and that was the easy one! I guess I have a lot of work ahead of me. It will be well worth it and you will get all the benefits of my new and improved blog. Everything is a work in progress! I truly look forward to having a better relationship with my readers and offering you exactly what you want!

This Week's Blog Article - Stepper Gift Box

Wow, this week I started so many projects! What else is new? I finally had a chance to finalize the stepper box design. My first few attempts all seemed to work out with minor tweaks. I chose this gift box because there are so many occasions where I can use this gift box - it was easy to put together. I did find that what to put into the boxes was the most difficult part, but then again, who does not like candy!

One thing to remember for this project is to use a very plain color for the base of the box and the lid, after that, the patterned paper can really pop on its own!

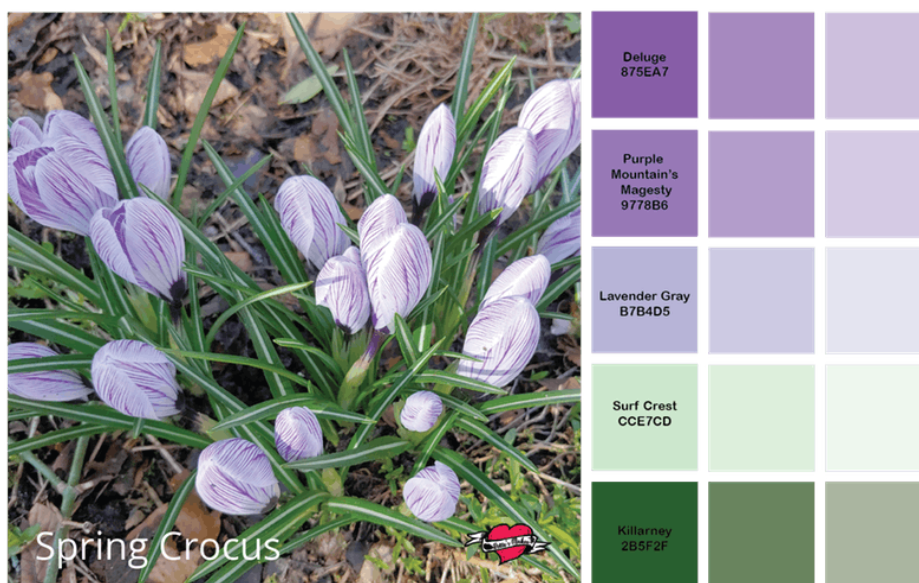

Check out the article on how to put this fun project together.

BTW - if you missed any of these newsletters, the archives are in the resource library - at the end of the list of files.

My Color Palette For This Week

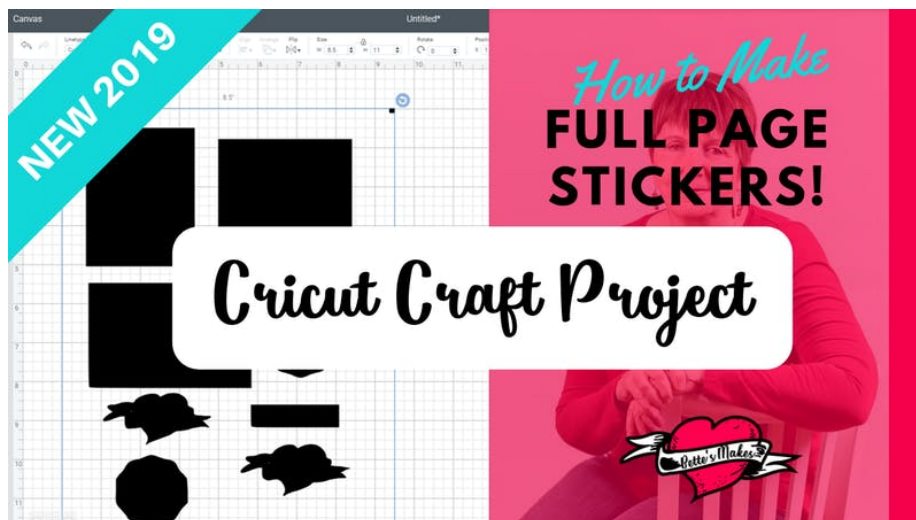

I am into Spring these days with all the flower buds around. Even some of the trees are pushing blossoms out. This week I took some photos of crocuses in the area. Although I have already posted the main image to Instagram, I really enjoyed putting this color palette together. The perfect combination for making Spring color projects.
