

June Birthdays are upon us. With my family there are 7 this month and 4 the next month. With that in mind, I designed a new birthday card template that can be adapted for each person (maybe they will catch on with the design, but I will change up the colors.) I tested the design and it was easy to adjust the SVG. See the bottom of this newsletter to get your template.

Still wanting to eat out!

I have still avoided going to restaurants and am really wanting to eat out at some of my favorite restaurants! I actually want to eat in the restaurant instead of take out. Have any of you been back in a routine where you go out for a meal?

This week I have been experimenting with creating SVGs on my Android SmartPhone by using Adobe Capture. It has so much potential, just see the image below for my first attempt at a flower as SVG. It seems as though there would be a lot of clean up to do with the image before I would cut it (too many itchy bitsy parts for me). Has anyone else tried using Adobe Capture?

This Week's Blog Article - How To Make An Exploding Gift Box

A DIY exploding gift box that is perfect for beginners to make. This step-by-step tutorial for an exploding gift box shows you how to make it with ease. Free template with the tutorial.

BTW - if you missed any of these newsletters, the archives are in the resource library - at the end of the list of files.

My Color Palette For This Week - Purple Rose

There are so many colors to see in the gardens this time of year. As I was walking down the street, this rose really caught my attention! So beautiful and so different! This nice soft color palette is a perfect match when you are choosing paper for your next card making session.

Video of the Week - Popup Birthday Card (yes, there are many birthdays this month)

Time for another easy make!
